

I think every year, because no team can release everyone at the same time, so there has to be a 'rota' - and if it's only every 2 years then in reality people will only be able to go once every 6 or 8 years, depending on the resources of their team.

Every year in person, but all content online as well for those unable to attend

If every 2 years would be good to meet in person. If every year, suggest online only or alternate between in person one year and online the next

An online presentation style every year (recorded so EVERYONE has access) and an in-person version in the between years. However, as a centre that only allows people to go every other year atm this would mean 4 years between conferences.

Every year in person with lectures live streamed and presentations available electronically

I would like to see any future online conference with presentations only - I think online it does not work to have the "technical suites" and break outs - it's just too demanding when its only via a screen. Not sure my answer's terribly helpful.
